MARSHFIELD

The Town of Marshfield is located in Southeastern Massachusetts in Plymouth County. A coastal community 30 miles from Boston, Marshfield has a yearly population of about 25,000 people which grows to about 40,000 in the summer months. The town's rich history of over 350 years dates back to the pre-revolutionary war era and is best known as the home of Daniel Webster from 1832 until his death in 1852. While a resident he was a very important national political figure and was known as "the Farmer of Marshfield". He served as a MA Congressman, US Senator and as the US Secretary of State.

Marshfield is 31.70 square miles in area, and contains 28.50 square miles of land and 3.25 square miles of water. The town has a traditional New England government structure with a three-member board of selectmen, an administrator and an open town meeting. Among the basic services provided to residents are public safety, schools, water and sewer, trash removal, recreation, public library and senior center.

Marshfield is active throughout the year with events such as the Marshfield Fair, which attracts visitors from all over the State. The community takes pride in the education it offers its young people, in its sports programs and in its unique environmental beauty both on the coast and inland.

In 1997 the Marcia Thomas House was moved to Webster Street and now serves as the headquarters for the Marshfield Historical Society. The home itself includes a restored Cape house feel with extensive archives of Marshfield's history inside. The museum is located at 65 Webster Street and the museum is open the first Sunday of the month from 1pm to 4pm by appointment. ## Winslow Cemetery

Within Marshfield's Winslow Cemetery located along Winslow Cemetery Road, is the tomb of Senator Daniel Webster himself. Daniel Webster was a well-known politician and diplomat born in Salisbury, NH in 1782. He became a notable courtroom lawyer and served as Secretary of State under three U.S. Presidents: Harrison, Tyler, and Filmore. He died in 1852 at his Marshfield home, and his tomb is open to the public in the cemetery.

Historic 1699 Winslow House

Located at 634 Careswell Street, the Winslow House is the ancestral home of the founding family of Marshfield. Virtually untouched by modernization, it was occupied by a family of governors, doctors, generals, lawyers, and judges who helped shape the South Shore as we know it. Seasonally the house is open for guided tours at 1pm, 2pm, 3pm on days the house is open. Regular tours of the home end the first weekend of November and can be scheduled by calling 781-837-5753 or emailing director@winslowhouse.org. ## Historic Hatch Mill

The Hatch Mill is a historic property at the corner of Union Street and Pine Street in North Marshfield. The Hatch family lived in a nearby Georgian colonial house made famous by the book, Red House. The former sawmill was a 19th-century water-powered mill that has seen several uses since the 17th century. It is currently closed to the public due to restoration and safety purposes. For more information and updates on construction, please contact Hatch Mill Restoration and Preservation Group at 781-837-3001 or visit www.hatchmill.com.
